Rules and Regulations

Why do I need IMO/SOLAS/WheelMark compliant products?

It's the Law! - All OffShore vessels, beds and bedding need to comply with relevant SOLAS IMO regulations. In addition, all EU registered vessels must have WheelMarked certified products, where required. In the USA mattresses and other products require a US Coast Guard Approval Number.

Ship Shape IMO products are multi-compliant with IMO, SOLAS, WheelMark & USCG!

What is: IMO, MED, WheelMark, SOLAS, FTP, MCA, MLC, USCG number?

There is a huge amount of jargon but to simplify things this is the easiest way to understand it.

1. The IMO (International Maritime Organisation) governs the Fire Safety rules for international waters.
2. SOLAS (Safety of Life at Sea) sets the safety standard for the IMO who publish the FTP (Fire Test Procedures)
3. In addition to the IMO standards, the MED (Marine Equipment Directive) stipulates a need for quality assurance and consistency on certain listed products for most EEC registered vessels.
4. The WheelMark is the sign of compliance to the MED Fire Safety Standards and thus also IMO SOLAS where applied.
5. In the UK, the MCA (Maritime and Coastguard Agency) is the agency responsible for ensuring that companies adhere to the IMO and MED standards and issues the WheelMark as a mark of compliance.
6. The USCG (United States Coast Guard) number is the USA equivalent of the MED and all of our WheelMark products bear the corresponding USCG equipment number.
7. MLC (Maritime Labour Convention) calls for all mattresses to be on a ventilated base.

Importance of Cabin Safety

"Sleep Well - Be Safe" There are enough hazards at sea without adding sleep deprived crew and officers into the equation! Well rested crew are able to make better decisions, react faster and are less stressed, all of which helps to ensure a smooth running vessel - It's a good investment!

Most fires start in the galley, engine room or cabins - make sure it's not on your watch!

CAUTION!

- "Insurers always look for mitigating factors to reduce pay outs"
- "Surveyors and Port Officials have the powers to fine or block movements of vessels for failure to comply with required standards"
- "Health & Safety and the M.L.C. are legally enforceable"

Can you afford non-compliance and it's possible ramifications?

It is every owner or operators responsibility to ensure that products comply with their vessels particular code and requirements.

You have a Duty of Care - If in doubt, be safe

'The Offshore' Roll-Pack Quality Mattress Range

Our new range of "OffShore Roll-Pack Mattresses" are vacuum packed in lightweight rolls, these can easily be hand-balled below deck and carried through tight access-ways into the cabins.

Once in situ, they simply un-roll and will expand to their full depth in just 24 hours - giving excellent support and comfort.

Ideal for where air-freight or small storage space is required or in hard to access cabins.

See the full range of pages 7, 8 & 9

The Importance of a Good Nights Sleep

Poor Mattresses lead to Bad Backs, Injuries, Tiredness and Fatigue; Causing Stress, Inefficient Crew, and Time-Off.

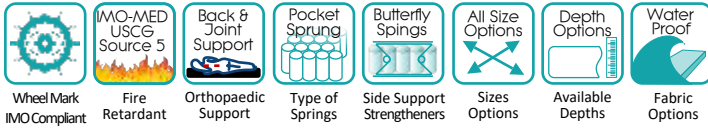

Well-rested staff = safer, more efficient, less accidents, less downtime
